2-AUGUST-2009 – JJ SCHULTZ

Hi. - JJ here. Say, I just want to start off this email with a big thanks to Bridget for all of the work she is doing with the photos - they come out so good, week after week, and anyone who's ever attempted to photograph inside the utah, well you know how skilled she is. Every time I try to shoot in there, it comes out as a red blob, while her photos are pieces of art, each one worthy of lingering thought, usually along the lines of 'That would make a GREAT album cover'. Anyways, I just had to get that off my chest - we are all very lucky people.... have a look here at the photos from last monday:
<http://bit.ly/bbHeZ>. gorgeous.

28-APRIL-2009 – comm-k8srq-1144839440@craigslist.org

Is this place for real?

Overheard someone saying recently "it's the ONLY [music] scene in San Francisco."

Really?

So my suspicion that the SF music scene was dying was totally off -- it's not dying, it's deader than dead.

Last visit for me was a bunch of posers standing around vibing each other. Yet once they hit the stage, they all sounded exactly alike: brooding, non-melodic down tempo shitty acoustic sung by frumpy dumpy played out hags and wannabe hipsters. BORING.

And what's with the PHOTOGRAPHER?

She's got to be the biggest idiot poser of them all -- leaning in, craning in, crouching on the floor, like she's chronicling an important life event for Nat'l Geographic, adorned in a safari outfit, like she's just happened upon some lost city.

Honey, calm down. It's an open mic. What a self-important asshole she is.

I laugh openly at your little "SCENE."

A Testimonial:

I'd like to commend Bridget of 200pockets for her seemingly tireless work in photography, especially in the San Francisco open mic community.

Her keen knowledge of HTML coupled with an eye for detail are indispensable skills as a webpage developer and webmaster. That coupled with her unique eye and vision and care for the artist make her photography stand apart from the usual gloss one gets used to.

Her sharing of her talent at unreasonably low rates make her a true gift to anyone involved in her work.

5-MARCH-2008 – CARA CORDONI (Courtin' Disaster)

Bridget, You are a deeply inspiring lady - I feel so lucky to be a viewer of your art and sometimes the subject - and that your art is photographing people I admire and love is such a gift. Your generosity is monumental. You are a role model and a rarity of a human being. Thank you!

Thank you so much for all hard work you do for us starving artists!!!! You have taken my favorite pictures of me!

8-JANUARY-2008 – GREAT GIRL'S BLOUSE

We also really appreciate what you do and think the whole community owes you a debt of gratitude. I know for our 10 years of playing music as Great Girls Blouse in Minneapolis we had a hard time getting anyone to take a decent photo, people were willing, just not that good. And then to come to San Francisco and to find you ready with camera in hand, then putting the photos online for people to readily use, is something really wonderful. Being a musician in bands for about 20 years I know that once the music is done, there is often the question mark on how to package it, what images to lay over it, etc. So its really helpful to us and to everyone else in the scene that you do what you do.

3-JANUARY-2008 – GG TANAKA

Hey Bridget, thank you & Klaus for coming out last night. It does mean a lot.
